The opinion expressed in this column is the personal view of the writer and does not necessarily reflect the views of the management. In fact, many times they do not.

ORCHIDS FOR RELIEF-CHAIRMAN

Generous response, be it said, with pardonable pride, has been made by the people and various organizations of Richmond to the appeal of the Red Cross for funds for the flood sufferers.

The fund lacks but little of reaching the quota of $1,500 and pledges have been made that assure that we will go over the top in this great humanitarian drive.

From present indications, however, it is expected that another call for funds may be made, which will mean another appeal, which we will not and cannot afford to ignore. Contributions therefore should not cease, although the present objective seems to have been accomplished, for the Red Cross can advantageously use every dollar in reducing the distress and suffering of those on whom Nature has visited her wrath.

The majority of us accept these drives, contribute our dollar or two and give no thought to the fact that in order to be a success they must have intelligent direction and unflinching energy behind them—a motivating force that must arouse the sympathies of the people and evoke monetary giving. Drives do not conduct themselves. Each and every one must have a guiding spirit. The most worthy of causes may fail, and many have, if some one of outstanding executive ability and personal popularity is not placed in charge.

As a matter of mere amenity, extending credit to whom it is due, I take pleasure in handing to Mrs. Mattie Chandler, 62-year-old woman and chairman of the Red Cross flood relief drive, a bouquet of orchids this morning, which is only another way of saying "well done", and in that respect I am sure I am voicing the sentiments of the entire community.

Mrs. Chandler has gone quietly but efficiently about her appointed

Court Of Honor
Is Conducted By
Legion Troop 2

With a large crowd of parents and friends in attendance, members of Troop No. 2 of Boy Scouts held a court of honor last evening at Memorial Hall.

Dr. E. N. Greek, Scoutmaster, received the highest honors of the evening when he received merit badges for stamp collection, animal industry, botany, weather, reading, aviation and zoology. This made Dr. Greek's total of merit badges 52, one of the highest number ever given a local Scout. In addition he received a bronze Eagle Scout palm.

Merit badges were also awarded to James Thompson and Claude Bissell.

After the session mothers of the boys served refreshments. Chris Gatter, of Troop No. 42, demonstrated a new type of "cup" tent which the American Legion, sponsor of Troop 2, plans to purchase for the boys.

LAMSON AND CHILD ARE RE-UNITED

SAN JOSE, April 3.—UP—David Lamson, the strain of a three year's fight for life snapped by dismissal of wife murder charges against him, laughed and played with his five-year-old daughter tonight.

NO NEW EVIDENCE

District Attorney Fred Thomas of Santa Clara county asked dismissal of the murder count in a brief hearing before Superior Judge J. J. Traubach today.

"We are unable to produce any new evidence," said Thomas simply, after a mechanical review of the four trials in Lamson's case and the State's untiring efforts to prove that he slugged his pretty blonde wife to death Memorial Day, 1933, in the bathroom of their Stanford university campus cottage.

Her nude body was found grotesquely sprawled in the bathtub of the house. Lamson has contended she must have fallen accidentally, striking her head and incurring fatal injuries.

ASKS DISMISSAL

Thomas said he informed the jury that no new witness could be obtained, and that if another trial had, we would again find

Hopkins Ruling On Transporting Workers Received

RICHMOND, April 3.—Ten months ago Betty Lovelace also known as Betty O'Neal, 22, convicted of robbery and sentenced to serve from five years to life in the women's prison at Tehachapi, refused to tell the whereabouts of her husband, saying "she didn't want him to get mixed up" in her crime career.

Today that husband, Orville W. Lovelace, obtained an interlocutory decree of divorce from her in the court of Superior Judge James G. Quinn. He based his divorce complaint on that section of the civil code which provides that a man or woman may obtain a divorce by showing that his or her mate has been convicted of a felony.

Lovelace testified that they were married in Richmond January 20, 1931, and separated September 30, 1934. It was one month later, according to police records, that his wife and Donald Vredenburg, 21, assertedly kidnapped and robbed Neilis Barton, of San Jose, of $3 on the highway near Mission San Jose.

Mrs. Lovelace and Vredenburg were later captured in Eureka, and confessed the crime. She is now in Tehachapi Prison and he is in San Quentin, also under sentence to serve from five years to life.

Lovelace's mother was his corroborating witness. Deputy Sheriff Grover Mull testified to taking the young woman to prison when she remained behind locked doors while the friends pleaded with her to come out.

In her room, on the eighth floor of the hotel Stacy-Trent could be heard the cry of newsboys shouting extras that "Bruno is dead."

She had laid prostrate on the bed when word of the execution meeting.

Greyhounds Run
Better In Rain
Experts Declare

With the greyhounds running fresher in the wet weather, El Cerrito Kennel club track anticipates a lively program tonight when the Tompkins Funtury will share honors with a seven-sixteenths mile marathon as feature events.

President George C. Chapman pointed out that in the rain the greyhounds seem to show greater interest. In his own words, the dogs run fresher in the rain.

El Cerrito's grandstand being enclosed and warmly heated by huge circulating gas heaters, the fans will be able to stay indoors and watch the greyhounds chase the electrical lure. Thus it is no inconvenience to the greyhounds nor to the crowds who watch in case of inclement weather for the Saturday night program.

Golden Hops, winner of his previous start, steps against some swift company in Another Aristocrat, Shawnee Belle, Globe Trotter, Free Gate and Big Butano tonight. The victory of Sonny Montana, his first of the year, probably might result in this dog's entry in the tenth race tonight and it would not be surprising if the Yellowstone Kennel entry comes through with a driving victory.

That seven-sixteenths mile race has the fans miffed. The dogs start at the three-sixteenths mile, but pass the grandstand two times. The fastest breakers are not always the winners in this grueling test. Frequently the dog that is absolutely last on the first trip past the judges' stand shows unusually late foot to pass up the field and take the decision in a breath-taking finish. The chances are excellent for each and every entry, the four straightaways giving them plenty of room to get through if they possess the speed.

Little Irish goes to the post in this long race, but is no cinch against proven distance bounds like Winning Number, Oswego Player, Dido, and Foaming Mite.

After the race, the El Cerrito track management has a special surprise for the fans.

SLAYER OF SCIENTIST IS ACQUITTED

NEW YORK, April 3.—UP—Vera Stretz, pretty blonde art student, was acquitted by a jury tonight of slaying her German lover, Dr. Fritz Gebhardt.

FAINTS AT VERDICT

Miss Stretz collapsed when she heard the verdict and was carried from the courtroom by Samuel Leibowitz, her attorney, and relatives.

Leibowitz thanked Judge Cornelius F. Collins for his conduct of the case. Frequently during the trial the defense lawyer had bickered with the court and once demanded a mis-trial over the judge's remarks.

The verdict was returned at 8:20 P. M. The jurors received the case at 3:32 P. M.

Miss Stretz, who has wept throughout the trial, admitted as a witness that she shot her German lover, but she said did it in self defense, to stem an attack.

She had been Gebhardt's mistress for more than a year prior to the slaying in his hotel apartment two floors above her own—on November 12.

WIFE SLAYER EXECUTED AT SAN QUENTIN

SAN FRANCISCO, April 3.—UP—Clarence DeMoss, 35, went to his death on the San Quentin gallows today insisting to the end he loved the woman for whom he murdered her.

"I love Macie," the Texas mechanic wrote to friends. "I didn't mean to kill her. I'll be with her soon. I'm sure we'll be happy together."

DIES IN 12 MINUTES

DeMoss dropped through the gallows trap at 10:34 A. M. The prison physician pronounced him dead 11 1/2 minutes later.

DeMoss shot his estranged wife at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. B. R. Norton, Bakersfield. He was convicted in March 1935, his attorney subsequently maintaining it was a close but futile fight among the death sentence. The condemned man went to his death still hoping for a last minute reprieve.

He called Ward in Times B. Holmes to his cell and said "relative" had caused the estrangement between himself and his wife. He insisted the man involved in their loss and his sister was discharged as "accidental."

LEAVES 6 ORPHANS

The execution of DeMoss leaves his six children orphans. Two of them witnessed the killing of their mother.

Prize swimmers said DeMoss wrote six letters last night, believed to be a condemned row record. He left a check from his pen to Jean Kristy, who, with Alexander Mackay, is scheduled to leave April 24 for kidnapping the negro boy in a sensational prison break a year and a half ago.

THE HANGING

The hanging was the 57th and last which will be witnessed by Warden Holman. During his eight years as head of the huge penal institution, 57 men have been hanged. Holmes prevented him from witnessing two, the re-creation.

"I don't like hangings," the gaunt warden said as he left the execution chamber. "But somebody has got to do them. If there weren't executions, there'd be more lynching, I guess."

Mother Doubts Suicide Youth Was Her Child

OAKLAND, April 3.—UP—Despite reports that her son had committed suicide while a political prisoner in Rio de Janeiro, Mrs. Edna Hill expressed doubt today that the youth identified as her son, Victor A. Barron, 26, was related to her.

The Senior Epworth League of the Community M. E. Church will hold a special service Sunday morning, May 5, when the group will meet at the home of the director, Lloyd McCausland, 916 Kern street, Richmond Annex, at 7 o'clock for a waffle breakfast. At 8:30 they will tune in on a broadcast over KSFO. This program is being sponsored by the California Conference Epworth League. There will be no League service in the evening.

WEBB RULING FRANK JORDAN ON STATE AID CELEBRATES FUNDS AWAITED ANNIVERSARY

SAN FRANCISCO, April 3—UP—How California will meet its relief expenses after May 15, when present funds are depleted, today was upon a decision by Attorney General U. S. Webb.

A ruling from the attorney general was requested by Governor Frank F. Merriam through State Senator Ray E. Riley.

If Webb rules the state cannot borrow or transfer money from other state funds. It was indicated Governor Merriam is ready to call a special session of the Legislature to deal with the problem of meeting expenditures between May 15 and July 1, when $24,000,000 in state funds will be available for the next fiscal year.

Little hope of assistance from the Federal government remained. It was reported State Relief Commissioner Judge Francis Carr and SRA Director Charles I. Schottland were returning from Washington Monday, unsuccessful in another plea for help.

Tri-facial neuralgia is also called "tic douleur." and although it is not a disease but only a symptom, it has come to be regarded almost as a disease entity. Those of my readers who have undergone an attack of neuralgia have little need to be told how much discomfort it may cause.

It may be hard for you to believe that the primary cause of tri-facial neuralgia usually is found in some irritation which is located in the stomach or intestines, even though it probably doesn't seem possible to you that this is capable of causing a pain located so far away, in the side of the face. However, gall-tract irritation must be considered the most frequent cause of tri-facial neuralgia.

The chief symptom during an attack is pain, which is generally limited to only one side of the face. One of the characteristic features of the pain is that it is not continuous, but intermittent. Patients usually describe the pain as being boring, stabbing, darting, throbbing, etc.; and I have heard patients say that it feels like a hot knife.

As a general rule, the pain appears suddenly and without an exciting cause to explain it, although it may seem to be brought on by exposure to cold, by emotional strain, by an unwise meal, or by coughing. The painful sensation may last for only a few minutes or may remain for several hours but is characteristically paroxysmal—that is, it occurs spasmodically. During the actual attack, the patient will prefer to keep as quiet as possible and hesitate to move around much.

This form of neuralgia is due to an involvement of the fifth nerve and may begin in one of the three branches of this nerve and later be distributed to the other branches. Undoubtedly, tri-facial neuralgia is the most common of all the neuralgias.

Another type of neuralgia is the intercostal type, which causes pain in between the ribs, through the side of the chest. When the pain is limited to the left side, the patient may easily confuse it with a pain arising from the heart and will be frightened into supposing that he has some form of heart trouble, when such is not the case. I know that many patients who have consulted me on account of a pain between the ribs on the right side have mistakenly believed that it was coming from a heart derangement and have been greatly relieved to find it was due to intercostal neuralgia. Usually, when one of these intercostal pains develops and when it is located on the right side, the patient will become so anxious over his condition that his very anxiety will center his attention on his distress and only serve to intensify the pain.

One of the outstanding features of neuralgia is its tendency to recurrence. Usually, the attacks are repeated with the passage of time and eventually, the space between the attacks will become shorter and shorter. There are exceptions to this rule, however.

I find that the patient with tri-facial neuralgia is benefited by taking a short fast which is followed by the milk diet, the enema being used to insure elimination from the colon. This treatment with the milk diet appears to be soothed to the entire alimentary canal and is frequently very effective in quieting down the irritation which is responsible for the reflex pains in the side of the face.

I will be glad to send my 2-page article on TRI-FACIAL NEURALGIA to any one who wishes it. To secure the article, write to me in care of this newspaper and enclose one large, self-addressed envelope and ten cents.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS (Pruritis)

Question: M. F. writes: "I have a peculiar form of intense itching which my family doctor tells me is pruritis. I want to know more about this disorder and would like to find out if you think it can be cured by rubbing on an external remedy?"

Answer: There is an intense burning or itching with all forms of pruritis. This is a very common disorder and is usually not permanent but cured by the external application of remedies. Sometimes it is of nervous origin or due to disease of the kidneys. Another important cause is constipation which will seem to increase the irritation. Many patients notice that during the winter time, when the elimination from the skin is lessened, that their pruritis becomes more marked. It has been my experience that pruritis may be completely cured, and, in those cases where the trouble has been present for only a short time, the taking of a short fast followed by a well balanced diet will usually bring about some improvement. If you are troubled with any tendency to pruritis, I would suggest that you use a cleansing and eliminative treatment in preference to a local treatment.

(Not Good Combination)
Question: Jacob B. states: "When using a combination of orange juice and milk, is it all right to take whole fruit with it, such as apples or pears?"

Answer: I would not advise adding entire fruit to the milk and fruit juice combination.

Question: J. J. A. asks: "How does milk of magnesia affect a person?"

Answer: Milk of magnesia is usually prescribed as a neutralizer of acid, or as a laxative.

YOUR GOOD HEALTH

Doctor Needs Many Facts Before Advising His Patients

By CLAUD NORTH CHRISMAN, M.D.

I OFTEN wish answers came to me as readily as do the numerous questions I should like to ask. Such as, the age, sex, occupation, condition of the kidneys, digestion and a host of other things. Diagnosis of a condition and its cause is difficult with all the information possible, and more so with only a few words explaining how the patient feels. Those who write to me are doing the best they can. They only think of the things that bother them. Often one can only suggest a possible cause and method of treatment. They must see their own physicians for a final diagnosis and treatment.

Frequently occupation, climate and economic surroundings have much to do with the troubles. In these times of stress we may not be able to correct these conditions, so we must do the best we can and hope for better circumstances. The doctor who sees his patients and can say to them, "Give up work, take a long sea voyage, go to the mountains, the sea shore or a sanitarium, north, south, east, or west," has an easy time.

Use Tools at Hand

The one who most care for his patient under all the circumstances is the one who must work hard. I use the tools at hand. Miss R. T. of Pennsylvania asks for advice. Pennsylvania is a big state. She does not say whether she lives in the mountains, the valleys, the lowlands, a wet or dry climate. She does say that she works in a factory. I know many of the conditions in the average factory, though it is just about the only kind of work I never had. She states that she has a small lump on her neck. Does not say where, but one physician says it is a simple goiter and is not diseased; another, that it is an enlarged thyroid, but not so bad that it would not hurt her. Now, she worries about it and thinks something should be done about it.

And, intertwined with an enlarged thyroid is a dangerous thing and if this one is causing her no trouble except mental, I can only say "Take your doctor's advice and let nature do her best."

She states, further, that lately her hearing has not been so good and she is always spitting mucus from her throat and not from her nose.

The Nose Cavity

The average patient's idea of the nose is the very small part that shows on the face. They do not realize that between these small external openings and the throat is a large cavity called the posterior nares, (or nose). This collects and carries all the drainage from the numerous sinuses and the secretions of the face and the secretions from all the nasal mucous membranes.

The posterior nares has a big job and usually does it very well, but with cold and influenza to add to its work it sometimes fails and we have a resulting catarrh.

The writer says that when she gets home from the factory in the evening she feels tired and run down, and sits down and feels cranky. That is a very good description of a condition resulting from an obstruction of the back part of the nose. It causes an increased effort to breath, always a little lack of fresh pure air. The good air has trouble getting into the lungs and the bad air is obstructed in getting out. The dust and dirt and irritating particles in the factory increases the obstruction. No wonder she is tired, nervous and a little cold.

She thinks she should have something to build her up and asks about cod liver oil. Yes, she needs cod liver oil and probably a good iron tonic. Cod liver oil is a food and contains the vitamins that control the growth of bacteria.

Dr. Chrisman invites inquiries and correspondence from readers. Address him in care of this newspaper.

Short Cuts

A shoe, hat and tie rack of unpainted wood is the equivalent of an extra closet when filled in a closet wall or door. The rack referred to is sturdy made, measures seven-sever, by twenty inches, and holds six hats, eight or nine pairs of shoes, and has a special bar for ties.

At last there is a ready-made curtain, as far as to fit any window from fifteen to forty-eight inches wide. The quilted design is fine with a raised or mitered border, with decorative or repeating blinds. For an additional charge there is a larger size, adjustable to widths from forty-eight inches to thirty-six inches.

The modern air refrigerator is air conditioned, its constant circulating warmth air is secured through improvements in scientific design that take advantage of the natural action of melting ice without any machinery.

Guide to Charm

Beauty Gift Is Kept by Hard Work

By JACQUELINE HUNT
NATURE is an Indian giver. Abuse her gifts and she takes them away. If she has blessed you with a clear, fresh skin and firm contours, and with a youthful figure, hold onto them. Guard them jealously.

Do not neglect to cleanse your skin thoroughly each night and to treat it with pure cosmetics. Exercise as conscientiously as your brush your teeth! Muscles and skin change as you grow older. Even if you let them slip a little, much of their beauty can be restored by facials, massage and exercise.

Lay out an intelligent beauty program for yourself. Live up to the rules and you will not find it difficult to keep your youthful figure and skin. Cleanliness is the first requisite for a lovely skin. Wash with tepid water and a bland soap once or twice daily and, if your skin tends to be dry, use a quick facial massage with a rich cream before retiring at night.

For the facial massage take up a liberal amount of cream on your fingertips and, starting at the base of the neck, massage with light, upward and outward circular movements to the temples and under-eye areas. Massage over the lips, too.

Then, taking up more cream, massage the forehead in circles from the center outward and upward to the hairline.

Leave the cream on your skin for ten minutes or longer if you can spare the time, then wipe off the excess with tissues or a soft towel and apply an astringent or skin tonic. For the youth-stressing astringent, put into a glass bowl two tablespoons of rose water, a teaspoon of your favorite skin tonic, a few drops of an ice cube or two. Pat onto the face liberally with cotton pads and allow to dry by evaporation.

Use a simple mask once every week or two. A very simple one is made from the beaten yolk of an egg, almond meal and rose water or witch hazel enough to make a paste that will spread easily. Apply to your thoroughly cleansed skin and leave on for five minutes. Remove by sponging with warm water. Dry your skin by patting it with tissues and apply finishing cream.

Very simple exercises, providing you do them regularly, will keep you figure young. Stretching is helpful. Do it while you are in bed in the morning, stretching your arms over your head as far as you can and at the same time pulling your feet and pointed toes as far down as you can. Hold this stretched position and roll from side to side.

For suggestions on keeping the chinline firm and youthful, send a stamped, self-addressed envelope for my leaflet, "Unfriendly China."

Beauty Tips

QUESTION: "My skin is a sight and I am leaving for a trip to Bermuda in three weeks! I have planned this trip and I do not want it spoilt by a complexion that makes me so self-conscious."

Can I do something to make my skin fresh and pretty before time to sail? It is sallow, with blackheads and a few pimples."

—Desperate.

Three weeks isn't much time but if you get to work at once you can improve the appearance of your skin. First get one of the friction-type cleansing preparations to remove the blackheads and a good toner or astringent lotion to tone the skin and dry up the pimples.

If you can manage it, give your skin a rest from cosmetics until you are ready to sail. Try to go to a soft, dry, clean, and dry during the first three weeks.

With a good start, the sun and moist ocean air that you will encounter on your journey will complete the improvement and bring you home with a warm, fair complexion.

QUESTION: "I am not over-weight but my hips are out of proportion to the rest of my body. Is it possible to reduce them without losing weight?"

—Dolly Jane."

Arms should be exercised at the shoulder so you readily have your body as you bend and of a meal unless it is absolutely necessary to do so.

Dishes For Today

Day's Meals Planned by Lunch Menu

By JUDITH WILSON

TRY as you may be of packing school lunch baskets or having a hot lunch ready when the children get home, you will have to keep it up for a month or more. So you will have to make the best of it. We have a few suggestions for today, just in case you are getting low on ideas.

Remember to plan the menus for the day to make sure they are well balanced. If the children carry their lunch to school at noon, starchy foods are apt to predominate. Then plan the evening meal to emphasize fresh vegetables, salads, fruits, milk puddings and milk.

HOT LUNCHES
Lima Beans with Bacon
Buttered Spinach or Greens
Grated Carrot-Raisin Salad
Bread and Butter
Grapenut Custard
Milk

Hard-Cooked Eggs in Tomato Sauce
Baked Potatoes Muffins
Buttered Broccoli
Ice Cream with Strawberries
Malted Milk Drink

If the noonday meal is eaten at home, then be sure that it is substantial and well-balanced and plan a simple rice or macaroni main dish for supper.

Whether the noon meal is carried to school or eaten at home, make it attractive.

This can be done by such simple tricks as scalloped or fancy cookie cutter for cutting the jam or marmalade sandwiches, mussels with jelly or a bit of mayonnaise baked in their shells, waxed paper cups, pretty napkins and some little surprise like a plump square of fudge tied in a cellophane wrapping.

School Sandwiches

Grind together 1 pound baked or boiled leftover ham, 1/2 pound unroasted peanuts and 6 sweet pickles. Moisten with a little bland mayonnaise or evaporated milk and put into a tightly covered jar. Use as needed.

He will just look

"no" quite deliberately. He is intelligent, but when it comes to talking, he seems to hold back.

Johnny's parents seem to try another approach. They often resist their present efforts to teach him to talk. He can say "no" when it will serve his end. He seems to understand much that is said to him. The assumption, therefore, is that his parents must annoy him more than they are aware in trying to get him to talk. Perhaps they undertake schooling him at odd moments that do not coincide with the child's leisure and readiness to learn.

These parents might try asking questions that will prompt speech when speech is necessary. For instance, when the child points for something, ask him, "What is that?" And after he names it, don't stop to correct his pronunciation.

Don't pay attention to his mispronunciations. That makes a child conscious of speech and often is the cause of him stopping.

For the same reason, don't fuss over him when he utters his first words.

He talks to himself without prompting, using such words as car, dog, cat, etc. don't call attention to the fact.

He is thinking out loud, exercising his vocabulary. The parent need not be calm and patient. The learning process is gradual and the child is subject to stage fright. So do not make an issue of teaching him to talk.

Needs a Lawyer

The advice you need most is the advice of a lawyer rather than that of a relative. I know nothing of your financial position. It is possible that your eldest child is working and is already contributing to the home. Naturally you have rights and they should be protected.

If your love for your husband has survived the blow—and many wives do recover from hurts inflicted on them by their husbands—try talking with him in the hope of bringing him to his senses. But if it hasn't, and you can manage, I would waste no more time on such a thankless cause.

Wives are prone to blame the other woman for their husband's infidelity with this girl or her sister. It's as much his look-out as hers or theirs. He certainly need not have remained the affair once he had extricated himself. You must face that fact and put the blame where it belongs.

Mrs. Martin will be glad to answer in this column questions of general interest. Mrs. Martin cannot reply individually to every correspondent. Names will not be published. Please address her care of this paper and use only one side when writing.

The Jewel Vogue

Collecting precious jewelry has become a hobby again. Women who already own fine collections are having them re-set. Now that gold settings are again smart, many colored stones enhanced by this treatment are being remedied.

The suit is the perfect setting for a new robe watch, a wrist watch or a brooch. Brooches worn at the neck of the more frilly blouses are smart. If they support a fine air-distinguished jewel, they give tone and elegance to the entire tailleur.

Peals are worn with all types of blouses. Peal earrings are rapidly gaining in popularity.

No jewel or decoration of any kind is as uniformly becoming and flattering to the wearer as the pearl.

Cuff-links and studs for women are again in vogue. You mother or grandmother used to have a set of them, which she kept in a little box made especially for them. They were of gold and enamel, diamonds, or semi-precious stones of filigree gold.

Wife and Mother Should Take Steps in Self-Defense

By MARIAN MAYS MARTIN

A WIFE and mother who has suffered the loss of her confidence and trust in her husband, plus the humiliation he has visited upon her, has every right to protect herself from further losses. She has her children to think of, also to think for her and to work with her. Life cannot be the same, she complains. Perhaps not, but it can be greatly improved. Here is a letter from a wife and mother:

was not present at the party, and he was exonerated from all blame and given a clean bill.

PRISONER WAS TAILOR

Joseph Parente, the Federal prisoner, who was charged with being permitted to wander about the town at will, came up for considerable discussion, and while there was no testimony to bear out the accusations, it was found that he had made a suit of clothes for Deputy Sheriff Elmer Short, and cut out suits for others, but the latter were not finished. It was found that Short had paid Parente for work done for him. It was the judgment of the jury that this practice should be discontinued. Parente, however, will not be able to make any additional suits, as he has been removed by the Federal authorities to San Francisco.

NO LIQUOR OUTSIDE GUESTS

It was also determined that at the county jail party, that a matron was present, and there was no liquor taken on to the premises, although a number of those present appeared with considerable quantities of liquor inside of them.

Investigation by the jury showed that while Parente was permitted to go down town, he was always accompanied by a deputy sheriff.

NO SINGING

The jury also found from the testimony taken, after the statements that had been turned over to them by the investigator of the district attorney's office, that there was no singing inside of the jail but it was outside at a very late hour and done by parties on the sidewalk. The early evening singing, it was determined, was by a church choir, practicing in the neighborhood.

The jury further recommended that the regulations of the jail regarding its conduct and the hours for visitors be strictly adhered to in the future.

NO GAMBLING

Another subject discussed was the report that gambling was permitted in the jail. The jury found that while the prisoners were permitted to play cards as a pastime, and used chips in the game, there had been no gambling.

REPORTING POLITICS

THERE is no more exacting news assignment than reporting politics. This is true particularly in a presidential year.

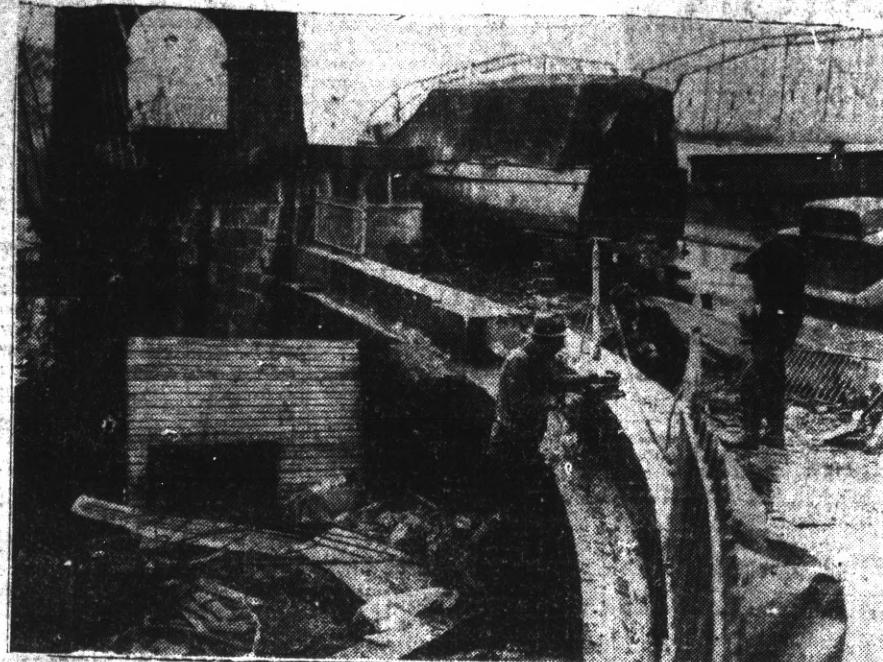

United Press, with its customary foresight, last June began its factual, unbiased, impartial political coverage for the 1936 presidential campaign. Representatives of ten states met in the mid-West grass roots convention at Springfield, Ill., at that time.

Since then expert United Press political writers have been moving across the United States covering the big pre-convention stories; making cross section surveys of various states; interviewing prospective candidates; watching new political movements and reporting day by day maneuvering.

These factors insure dominant political news coverage for UNITED PRESS client newspapers with UNITED PRESS... ACCURACY... SPEED... INDEPENDENCE.

United Press dispatches appear in Record-Herald

CITIES AND towns in the Ohio River areas began to dig themselves out of the mud and start repairs with the passing of the recent disastrous floods. little child was snatched from its crib, my interest in the case centered first to get the little tot back in its mother's arms and when this hope was blasted, to see that the persons who were so cruel should pay their debt to society. I have never had any curious interest in this case. I have none now.

I am a mother. I know the fears a mother has about her children. I have had them. There are many things connected with the Hauptmann trial that don't ring true. It was conducted in a most atmosphere—it was a circus. No man who was involved in the case, through circumstantial evidence or other ways, had a chance of getting justice.

They say that Governor Hoffmann did wrong in giving the man a reprieve. I think he did just what you would have done, what I would have done had we been confronted by the doubts that exist about Hauptmann's guilt.

A human life was at stake. What else could he do and dispense justice honorably. As long as there has been so much doubt raised, so many stories told, so many confessions made, I believe Hauptmann should have been given life imprisonment. Then, as the years were on, the true story of the crime would have come out. The others involved too would be punished.

The door that shut behind Hauptmann as he walked into the execution chamber closed also on all hopes of bringing all the guilty in his terrible crime to justice.

They say that Governor Hoffmann did wrong in giving the man a reprieve. I think he did just what you would have done, what I would have done had we been confronted by the doubts that exist about Hauptmann's guilt.

But he was silent and continued so as they placed him in a chair and lashed a strap across his chest.

BRUNO DIES IN CHAIR FOR TOT KIDNAP-DEATH

in a grey shirt open at the throat, in shapeless brown trousers and bedroom slippers. At first glance, only his eyes identified him as being the man who sat directly in front of the United Press correspondent at Flemington during the six weeks of his trial. They had clipped the hair off his skull and it gleamed; white and hard in the

EXECUTION DETAILS

Robert Elliott, the executioner, stood beside a bucket of brine in which he was soaking the sponges to be used on Hauptmann—a wrinkled, old mechanic of death puttering around with his tools. There were more than 50 persons crowded into one corner of the room, but if Hauptmann saw them they must have been nothing but a blur of faces to him.

Elliott moved on soundless feet back toward a wheel in the wall that sends the current through the chair.

He reached up and spun it.

There came a growing sound like that made by a truck going up a steep hill under a heavy load.

Out of a dynamo raced the lightning. It hit Hauptmann's brain first, knocking him senseless, and throwing him tense, shuddering, against the strap.

Yellow crept into the row of bulbs above Elliott's wheel as the old mechanic of death without turning to look at his handwork pouted more current through Hauptmann.

Elliott's arms moved once more. A plume of smoke was rising from the floor—signal that the antique sponge was dry and hot. The current went off.

Death is quick and cheap in the little white room. Elliott had used only about four minutes of time and only 1.01 cents worth of electricity.

OFFICIALLY DEAD

There was a file of physicians waiting on the right hand side of the chair. Dr. Howard Wissler, prison physician, stepped forward, a stethoscope dangling from his neck. He laid it on Hauptmann's chest and then stepped back while the other doctors came forward.

Not until every doctor had examined Hauptmann was New Jersey satisfied that it had avenged the murder of the Lindbergh baby.

REMAINS SILENT

Hauptmann was silent as he was removed from his cell. As he followed Rev. Mathewson and Prison Chaplin John Goorley through the door, they were repeating the Twenty-third Psalm in German.

They say that Governor Hoffmann did wrong in giving the man a reprieve. I think he did just what you would have done, what I would have done had we been confronted by the doubts that exist about Hauptmann's guilt.

But he was silent and continued so as they placed him in a chair and lashed a strap across his chest.

STATEMENT ISSUED

After the execution, a written statement for publication handed by Hauptmann to his spiritual advisor was given to the press. The statement, written by the condemned man, follows:

"I am glad that my life in a world that has not always understood me has ended. Soon I will be at home with my Lord and, as I love my Lord, so I am dying, an innocent man.

"Should, however, my death serve the purpose of abolishing capital punishment, such punishment being derived at only by circumstantial evidence, I feel that my death will not have been in vain.

"I am appeased with God.

"I repeat that I protest my innocence of the crime for which I was convicted. However, I die with no malice or hatred in my heart. The love of Christ has filled my soul and I am happy with Him."

His last request was that his body be cremated.

Would Restrain Deed Issuance

MARTINEZ, April 3.—Trial of an action filed by Mrs. Teresa Chetton of Richmond against Sheriff John A. Miller, in which she seeks a writ of mandate, was in progress today before Superior Judge A. F. Lewis-Creel-McAfee group.

"I wish to call to your further attention that any speaker wishing to speak for the EPIC organization will be selected by the executive committee of the End Poverty League, instead he is a representative of the reactionary Lewis-Creel-McAfee group.

"The property was sold under a mechanic's lien by sheriff and Mrs. Chetton, who allegedly redeemed her share, asks the court to order the sheriff to deliver a deed to her.

SHE LOST 20 POUNDS OF FAT

Feel full of pep and possess the slender form you crave, you can't if you listen to gossipers.

To take off excess fat go light on fatty meats, butter, cream and sugary sweets, eat more fruit and vegetables and take a half teaspoonful of Krusche's Fat Burner in a glass of hot water every morning to eliminate excess waste.

Mrs. Elma Verline of Havre de Grace, Md., writes: "I took off 28 lbs. of my clothes fit me fine now."

Now comes the time for a combination—but blissful daily diet as when you take your little daily dose of Krusche's.

LAMSON AND CHILD ARE RE-UNITED

ourselves in the position we are today."

"For these reasons I move that the information herein be dismissed," he announced.

CASE DISCHARGED
White-haired Judge Trabucco immediately discharged the case. Lamson, shaking with sobs, his face ashen, was half carried from the courtroom by his sister, Dr. Margaret Lamson, other relatives and friends.

Whisked from the county jail to Dr. Lamson's home, Dave slowly groped his way to realization. He was free. At times he seemed to fight for relaxation.

At her home Dr. Lamson brought Dave's five year old daughter, Alene Genevieve, to meet him.

MEETS CHILD
"Bebe, this is your daddy," she said, gravely. For three years Bebe has been told her father was on a trip.

"Daddy!" shouted the little girl, throwing herself in his arms. With childish gravity she examined his face.

"You need a shave," she chided. Tears coursed down Lamson's face and Alene's.

ASKED FOR STORY
Within five minutes she was asking that he read her a story—which he did. "And did you bring me home a cow?" she asked, holding him to promises that when daddy came back she would have a cow to milk."

PLANS ARE VAGUE
"I have no plans for my future, but I want to be useful," said Lamson in a statement, later. "This morning I had the biggest surprise of my life. I came closer to fainting than ever before."

"I was even more surprised to hear the district attorney read the statement asking for the dismissal of my case than when the jury declared me guilty in the first trial."

Lamson said he probably would write a book on prison reform. He may go to his father's ranch in Alberta Province for a time.
